WEA Member Benefits Wins Award for High Employee Engagement

Madison, WI—WEA Member Benefits, a leading provider of financial products and education for Wisconsin public school employees and their families, received the Employee Voice Award (EVA) from Quantum Workplace of Omaha, Nebraska. Quantum is a software company well-known for its all-in-one manager toolset and Best Places to Work contest.

The EVA honors companies nationwide for their outstanding work in employee engagement, the level of participation, and employee engagement survey results. Recipients of the Employee Voice Award recognize the value of their employees' voices and demonstrate excellence in translating feedback into results. In the past year, honorees have listened to their employees and worked hard to put that feedback into action within their organizations.

WEA Member Benefits was one of 12 companies nationwide—across a variety of industry sectors and ranging in size—to receive the EVA. It was the only Wisconsin company to be recognized as having the “highest level of employee engagement.”

“I am so proud to have Member Benefits receive the Employee Voice Award,” says Dave Kijek, President and CEO. “Staff engagement is an enterprise-wide initiative at Member Benefits. We believe that when employees feel they are respected and taken care of, their level of engagement and job satisfaction goes up. A happy team is more productive and committed, and that translates to good things happening for those we serve. It also spurs innovation and creates opportunities for growth for the organization.”

WEA Member Benefits has 80 employees and has been utilizing Quantum Workplace surveys to measure employee satisfaction and engagement since 2015.

“A commitment to great company culture is a powerful asset, it’s the most powerful asset. In order to have great company culture, there must be a commitment to consistent transformation,” said Greg Harris, President and CEO of Quantum Workplace, “and these 12 organizations understand that. They are responsive to honest and blunt employee feedback, and take immediate action on the areas that need improvement. We are lucky to partner with these organizations, and we are excited to recognize them for their commitment to making work better every day.”

WEA Member Benefits was also named Best Places to Work in 2017 and was an In Business Best Companies to Work For finalist in 2015.

“Our team is made up of highly skilled individuals who are passionate about our vision, ‘Every member financially secure.’ We work hard, but we also believe that having fun builds a stronger team. Our emphasis on professional development, recognition, and benefit offerings contribute to job satisfaction, as well as our ability to recruit and retain exceptional staff,” says Kijek.
